EXORDIUM

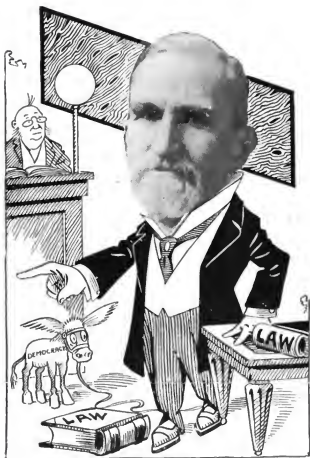

THE inconvenience of being ten years dead, which is made a condition upon candidates for niches in the Hall of Fame, precludes many of our worthy citizens from striving for a place in that noble institution. And then the Hall of Fame is just a little bit too dignified anyway, and it would be tiring for the successful business man to stand in a cramped marble attitude year in and year out. There would be nothing doing— or, as the dignified occupants of the Hall would say, "No activities transpiring."

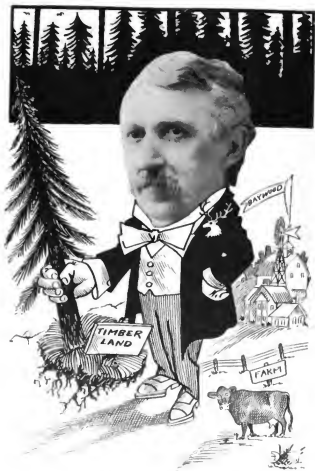

But there is another Pantheon where the living may repose in comfort and whose only conditions are that they be representative of the interests now on earth—and look pleasant. On these trifling conditions the boon of immortality is conferred upon men by those later-day Olympians, the cartoonists of the daily press—little gods of the brush and pencil, whose creations shall endure, as men prefer to smile rather than weep.

This Pantheon is a long way removed from the sombre dignity of the Hall of Fame, but it is equally distant from the reproachful atmosphere of the Rogues' Gallery. It is made up of those men who perform their share of the world's work in such a manner as to bring them into public notice. Upon these the cartoonists pounce with rare avidity, and, by emphasizing their most prominent characteristics, present them in a proper perspective for the world to view. No man who comes within the range of the cartoonist's vision may hope to wrap himself in a mantle of mystery. The X-ray of the cartoonist penetrates his mask and limns his soul-secrets, as it were, for the benefit of his contemporaries and posterity.

From the broad galleries of the newspaper cartoonist's sketch-book, the following character sketches have been collated under the head of "Madison Men of Affairs," pictured as they appear to the penetrating yet friendly eye of the cartoonist. If no great beauty is depicted in his portrait, let the subject console himself with the reflection that these "Men of Affairs" are not as their wives and sweet-hearts see them, nor yet as they see themselves, but as they appear to the little Gods of the Ink Pots—sometimes miscalled "Devils"—the cartoonists of the press.
